

Essex and Kent County, Ontario Militia Rolls for the Period 25 December 1812 to 24 January 1813

Diane Wolford Sheppard, FCHSM member (bluecolumbine@comcast.net)

Introduction: Library and Archives Canada granted permission to transcribe the information contained in the Payroll, Muster Rolls, and Musterly Returns of the Essex and Kent County Militia for the period 25 December 1812 to 24 January 1813. The rolls are contained on Adjutant-General's Office, Upper Canada fonds/Reel T 10389, Vol. 32, pp. 445-470. I transcribed the following information from the payrolls: name, rank, dates of service if recorded, and all comments contained on the roll, spelling out abbreviated comments if it would aid in understanding, and following the capitalization contained in the original. The names were transcribed as closely as possible to the original, including the occasional use of a period to precede superscript letters. Comments such as the standardized spelling of French-Canadian names or the original surname and dit name appear in brackets. Many men used only their dit names during this period; in some cases, I could not determine their original surname because the dit name was used by too many families to identify them.¹ The names of French Canadians or those of French-Canadian descent appear in bold face-type. The names of those with possible French-Canadians have brackets after their name with the designation [possibly French Canadian, but they do not appear in standard sources]. I have not made any efforts to standardize the spelling of those who were not French Canadian. I have used question marks to designate illegible words or phrases, or a question regarding the spelling or standardization of a name.

On 18 January 1812, American Lieutenant Colonel William Lewis and several local residents of Frenchtown/River Raisin (present-day Monroe, Michigan) drove off British Major Ebenezer Reynolds of the 2nd Essex County regiment and two companies of militia under captains William Elliott and Alexis Rivard dit Loranger dit Maisonville. Four hundred Potawatomi and Wyandot warriors supported the militia. On 22 January 1813, British Colonel Henry Procter, 336 British regulars, 212 men from Essex County's 1st and 2nd militia, 19 men from the Indian Department, including 16 interpreters, and 28 Provincial Marines, Roundhead, Splitlog, and Walk-in-the-Water, and about 600 warriors defeated the Americans in the Battle of Frenchtown/River Raisin. During the battle, the Kentucky militia mixed buckshot with musket rounds, a method that was so disdained that the British refused to use captured ammunition. The Americans also fired on the wounded, violating European war standards. Roundhead and Brandy Jack, a Wyandot, captured Winchester about midmorning. Procter was able to convince Winchester to order the remaining Americans to surrender by 11:00 a.m., although the troops on the north side of the river were relatively untouched by the battle. During the battle, Procter, Roundhead, Splitlog, and Walk-in-the-Water's forces killed about 220 and captured almost 500; while the Americans killed 24 British troops or militia and wounded 160; the Native American losses are not known. The next morning, the Native Americans entered Frenchtown/River Raisin where they robbed the wounded, killed those who were unable to walk, and ordered the remainder outside. The Native Americans set fire to the homes that had served as hospitals and marched the remaining wounded out of the settlement, killing those who could not walk. The number of wounded killed on the 23rd varies between 30-60. Later interviews and correspondence attributed the Native-American actions to a number of causes, including retaliation against the Americans who killed and desecrated the bodies of Native Americans in the battle on the 18th and the 22nd; the Frenchtown/River Raisin collaborators who refused to aid the Wyandots as they retreated from the Maumee Rapids the previous fall; the residents who Joined the Americans in the battle on the 18th; and the Americans who tortured and fired upon Native-American and British wounded.²
