[Faubourg Sainte Rosalie was located northeast of the fort, not on the south shore or the Canadian side as stated in Denissen.<sup>1</sup> Ages and birthplaces were not enumerated in the census.]

On 21 January 1763 when their daughter Marie Josèphe was baptized, Charles Poupard was described as a maître charon (master wheel maker/cartwright) who lived in Faubourg Sainte Rosalie [Ste Anne Register Part 2, image 113; Jetté, 942; PRDH, #17730 – Joseph St. Aubin and Marie Julienne Cuillierier dite Ribercour family view; Kelley, ed.,10; Denissen, II, 1007].

Versailles, 90-foot lot, 1 boy, 4 girls, poor. Annotations: When Jean Baptiste Vallée dit Versailles married Marie Élisabeth Drouillard, daughter of Jean Baptiste Drouillard and Élisabeth Rapin, 7 January 1751 in Ste Anne du Détroit, he said he was the son of Jean Vallée and Jeanne Rolland from the parish of Beine (Beynes), diocese of Chartres. Jean Valet, son of Jean Valet and Jeanne Boivin, was born 5 November 1727 in Beynes, Yvelines, Île-de-France, France. His parents were married 25 June 1721 in Beynes. Marie Élisabeth Drouillard was born circa 1735 at an unknown location. Their surviving children were Pierre, Marie Élisabeth, Marie Catherine, Marie Louise, and Suzanne. When Suzanne was baptized 2 September 1762, her father was described as demeurant en sa maison au faubour de Sainte Rosalie. Jean Valée dit Versailles, from Versailles, age 16, was a nouvelle levée (newly raised or a recruit), who entered Hôtel-Dieu de Québec 5 September 1744 and left on the 25th. In the Cicotte Ledger (1749-1752), Jean Valée, like Pierre Durand dit Montmirel, was a soldier who had gone to Détroit to be in the garrison [www.archives.yvelines.fr – archives en ligne, registres paroissiaux et état civil, Beynes, parish of Saint Martin, collection communale, 5MI1867, BMS, 1721-1739, image 9 – parents’ marriage and image 90 – baptism of Jean Valet; found by Gail Moreau-DesHarnais 26 August 2013; Ste Anne Register Part 2, image 39 – marriage, image 110 – Suzanne’s baptism; PRDH, #17508 – Marie Élisabeth

<sup>1</sup> Using the example of the Jacques Duperron Baby family who lived in Ste Rosalie, Denissen, or his editors, state on 32 that Suzanne Baby was born on 12 July 1762 in Fauberg Ste Rosalie “on the South Coast of Detroit.” The actual baptismal record, however, merely states that she was born in faubourg Sainte Rosalie Ancestry.com, Drouin Collection, [D, Détroit, Ste-Anne, 1702-1780, 109]. The conflict regarding its location is solved when one examines Robert Navarre, Journal of Pontiac’s conspiracy, Michigan Pioneer and Historical Society, Historical Collections (Lansing, Michigan: Thorp and Godfrey, State Printers and Binders) [hereafter MPHSC], vol. 8, 307. Pontiac’s men took a position “in the suburb, which was built northeast of the fort at a distance of about two arpents, and which formed a good entrenchment for them.” On 327, “the Indians and some adventurers had made a trench behind the house of Mr. Baby, which was {blank} arpents from the fort.” From Suzanne Boivin Sommerville: “One arpent is 191.83 feet, thus about 60.64 yards times 2 = 121.28 yards, 20 yards longer than a football field, or slightly larger than a football field.”

<sup>2</sup> Russell, 24 – stated that this was a reference to Charles Piquet dit Lafleur and stated that this was the same Lafleur who owned a lot in the fort even though the two descriptions were different.

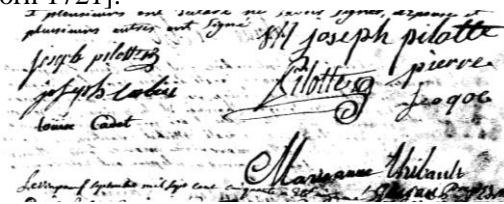

Drouillard's marriage from her parents' (Jean Baptiste Drouillard and Marie Élisabeth Rapin) couple and family views – does not give her birth date or location; Kelley, ed., 8; Denissen, I, 368 – Drouillard family, II, 1229 Vallée family – does not show a birth year for her; Régnal Lessard, Compagnies franches de la Marine au Canada 1750-1760, Société de généalogie de Québec (<http://sgq.qc.ca/bases/marine.php>) and Family History Microfilm #1287130 – Hôtel-Dieu de Québec; Gail Moreau-DesHarnais, "Edward Cicotte Ledger 1749-1752 Containing Accounts of French Settlers at Detroit," MHH, Vol. 29, #3, July 2008, 154 ].
