Brief Bibliography for researching French-Canadian Housing and Furniture
Diane Wolford Sheppard© 20 November 2013, FCHSM member

Questions have periodically been raised on social media\(^1\) and during FCHSM meetings about the styles of houses that our ancestors lived in and the kinds of furniture that they used during the 17\(^{th}\) and 18\(^{th}\) centuries. Since social media and questions raised in a Society meeting do not lend themselves well to an annotated bibliography or to a printable reference, I decided that a short bibliography was appropriate. The following books and internet sources provide you with information about housing styles and furniture in various French-Canadian communities. Under normal circumstances, I would list internet sources with the books, but it is often helpful to look at pictures to determine whether you want to purchase or borrow a book on inter-library loan for more information.

Most houses in Michigan and the Great Lakes built during the French and early British regimes used one of three methods of construction: Poteaux-en-terre (posts in the earth) construction, Piece-sur-piece construction, and Poteaux-sur-sole (post on sill) style. Each style is defined in the books cited below, as well as on Wikipedia.org.

Most of the houses in Michilimackinac and Detroit were built in what is known as the Poteaux-en-terre (posts in the earth) style of construction as illustrated below:

Poteaux-en-terre (posts in the earth) Construction

\(^1\) Two of the more recent questions were posed by FCHSM member, Janice Fouchia Lekich.
The Navarre Anderson Trading Post in Monroe, Michigan is the oldest wooden residence still standing in Michigan. It is the most complete example of French-Canadian piece-sur-piece construction and has been restored to 1797. The photo on the right illustrates the placement of upright and horizontal logs on interior walls.

The building in the background was constructed using the piece-sur-piece method of construction. Photo courtesy of Colonial Michilimackinac, 0131CM
Poteaux-sur-sole (post on sill) style of Construction

Holy Family Church in Cahokia, Illinois. The parish was founded in 1699 and is the oldest continuously operating parish in the United States. The log church was built in 1799. The church was built in the poteaux-sur-sole (post on sill) style. The spaces between the upright logs were filled with stone and mortar chinking.²

Brief Bibliography

This bibliography should be considered a starting point, rather than a comprehensive bibliography. Most of the books listed contain extensive bibliographies.

Books published by the Mackinac State Park Commission can be purchased directly from the commission. A printable order form and list of books can be accessed from their website: http://www.mackinacparks.com/history/index.aspx?l=0,1,4,36,390

Many of these books can be purchased from used book sites such as: www.amazon.com; http://used.addall.com/ or http://www.abebooks.com/servlet/SearchEntry?cm_sp=TopNav--Results--Advs

Evans, Lynn L.M. Keys to the Past – Archaeological Treasures of Mackinac (Mackinac Island, Michigan: Mackinac State Historic Parks, 2003). This book contains color illustrations of some of the items that have been excavated from the Michigan State Historic Park Site.

Lambert, Phyllis and Alan Stewart, editors, Opening the Gates of Eighteenth-Century Montréal (Cambridge, Massachusetts: MIT Press, unknown date). This volume contains chapters on Fortifications, Town, and Buildings and contains a number of maps, drawings, and other illustrations.

Lessard, Michel, Antique Furniture of Québec – Four Centuries of Furniture Making (Toronto, Ontario: McClelland & Stewart, Ltd: 2002). This 543 page book contains hundreds of full color illustrations. The list price on this book was $85, but used copies can be purchased for as little as $12.49 (as of 20 November 2103, based on a search done at www.add.com).

Kent, Timothy J., Ft. Pontchartrain at Detroit: A Guide to the Daily Lives of Fur Trade and Military Personnel, Settlers, and Missionaries at French Posts (Silver Fox Enterprises, 2001). This is the most comprehensive book to discuss all aspects of life in Détroit during the French Régime. The two volume set contains the following chapters: Introduction; Historical Overview; Canoe Transportation; Provisions, Cooking, and Eating; Hunting and Warfare, Trapping, and Fishing; Buildings, Hardware, and Furnishings; Furnishings of the Church, Vestments, and Activities of the Priest; Woodworking, Metalworking, and Masonryworking; Farming and Gardening; Clothing; Sewing, Laundry, and Cleaning; Grooming and Medical Treatments; Recreation, Trade and Commerce. The book also contains black and white illustrations and numerous appendices which include translations of various documents related to the history of Détroit during the French Régime. Timothy J. Kent is a FCHSM member.